As Christians, we cannot ignore a deep truth as we navigate AI. We are prone to bumble through all sorts of things. While we are the only ones who— with God’s help—can determine how we ought to live and what we ought to do, we struggle like Paul to actually do what we ought to do. This is the great dilemma posed in How to Wield the Double-Edged Sword of AI. While the technology holds great potential for good, it also bears the sins of its creators. 2026 K–12 Parent Trust Report: What Schools Need to Know examines the relationship between parent trust, communication, school safety, academic quality, and responsiveness to concerns. In its survey of 474 parents, 31% reported that schools requested feedback but rarely acted on it. The report explores why collecting feedback without visible follow-through can undermine trust. Are you leading your school—or trying to do everything yourself? Effective delegation empowers teachers, develops future leaders, and frees principals to focus on what matters most. Discover practical strategies for building a stronger, more collaborative school team in How to Delegate to Your Team. (EntreLeadership in Ramsey)
